INTRODUCTION

Standard Eurobarometer 97
Europeans' opinions about the European Union's priorities
Summer 2022

The Standard Eurobarometer 97 (EB97) survey of summer 2022 was conducted between 17 June and 17 July 2022 in 39 countries or territories: the 27 Member States of the European Union, the five candidate countries (Albania, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia and Turkey), the Turkish Cypriot Community in the part of the country not controlled by the Government of the Republic of Cyprus, as well as in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Iceland, Kosovo¹, Norway, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

The full report of the Standard Eurobarometer 97 survey consists of multiple volumes. The first volume presents the results of general questions about the state of public opinion in the European Union. Three other volumes present Europeans' opinions about the following topics: the EU and the War in Ukraine, the European Union's priorities, and European citizenship.

This volume of the summer 2022 Standard Eurobarometer survey analyses European citizens' opinions about the European Union's priorities, and more specifically the six priorities set by the European Commission:

- "A stronger Europe in the world": do Europeans think that the EU is strong enough in the world, in terms of the economy and diplomacy? Should there be further integration of EU policies at an international level?
- "A new impetus for democracy": are Europeans satisfied with how democracy works in their country and in the European Union? Are the interests of their country properly taken into account in the European Union? Are EU citizens' voices sufficiently taken into account in decisions relating to the future of Europe?
- "An economy that works for its citizens": do Europeans support economic and monetary union? Are they in favour of various measures aimed at reducing inequalities within the EU (creation of a public-private fund for SMEs; improvement of gender equality)? Do they view globalisation as an opportunity?
- "Promoting the European way of life": how do Europeans feel about the EU's values, such as fundamental rights and democracy? How do they view immigration and asylum policy at a European level? How do they feel about the free movement of citizens in the EU?
- "A European Green Deal": what do Europeans feel should be the priority objectives in a European Green Deal? Do Europeans want a common energy policy among EU Member States?
- "A digital single market within the EU": are Europeans in favour of a digital single market within the EU?

Methodology used for this survey

Due to the coronavirus pandemic, in some countries alternative interview modes to face-to-face were necessary as a result of the situation.

When possible, the methodology used was that of the Standard Eurobarometer surveys carried out by the Directorate-General for Communication ("Media monitoring and Eurobarometer" Unit)²³.

Following the EU General Data Protection Regulation⁴ (GDPR), respondents were asked whether or not they would agree to be asked questions on issues that could be considered "sensitive".

Note: In this report, EU countries are referred to by their official abbreviation. The abbreviations used in this report correspond to:

* Cyprus as a whole is one of the 27 European Union Member States. However, the 'acquis communautaire' has been suspended in the part of the country which is not controlled by the government of the Republic of Cyprus. For practical reasons, only the interviews carried out in the part of the country controlled by the government of the Republic of Cyprus are included in the 'CY' category and in the EU27 average.

We wish to thank the people throughout the European Union who have given their time to take part in this survey.

Without their active participation, this study would not have been possible

Standard Eurobarometer 97
Europeans' opinions about the European Union's priorities
Summer 2022

Seven in ten Europeans think that the EU has sufficient power and tools to defend the economic interests of Europe in the global economy

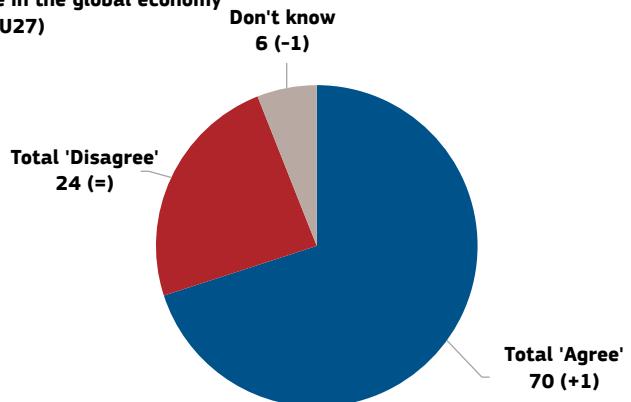

A large majority of respondents (70%, +1 percentage point since winter 2021-2022), think that the EU has sufficient power and tools to defend the economic interests of Europe in the global economy⁵, with 23% (+2 pp) saying they “totally agree” and 47% (-1 pp) that they “tend to agree”. Almost one quarter (24%, =) disagree including 19% (=) who “tend to disagree” and 5% (=) who “totally disagree”. Just over one in twenty (6%, -1 pp) say they don’t know.

Almost seven in ten respondents (68%, +1 percentage point since winter 2021-2022) in euro area countries agree the EU has sufficient power and tools to defend the economic interests of Europe in the global economy. Although agreement has increased slightly, it remains lower than in non-euro area countries, where agreement has increased four points to 76%.

In all 27 Member States (no change since winter 2021-2022) a majority agrees the EU has sufficient power and tools to defend the economic interests of Europe in the global economy, although proportions range from 86% in Malta and Poland, 85% in Portugal, 81% in Greece and 80% in Spain to 51% in France, 57% in Czechia and 59% in Estonia.

Seven in ten Europeans are in favour of a common foreign policy of the Member States of the EU

Seven in ten (70%, -1 percentage point since winter 2021-2022) Europeans are in favour of a common foreign policy of the Member States of the EU.⁶ This is the third consecutive decrease since winter 2020-2021 (-3 pp), although the positive view remains higher than the period between autumn 2007 and autumn 2019.

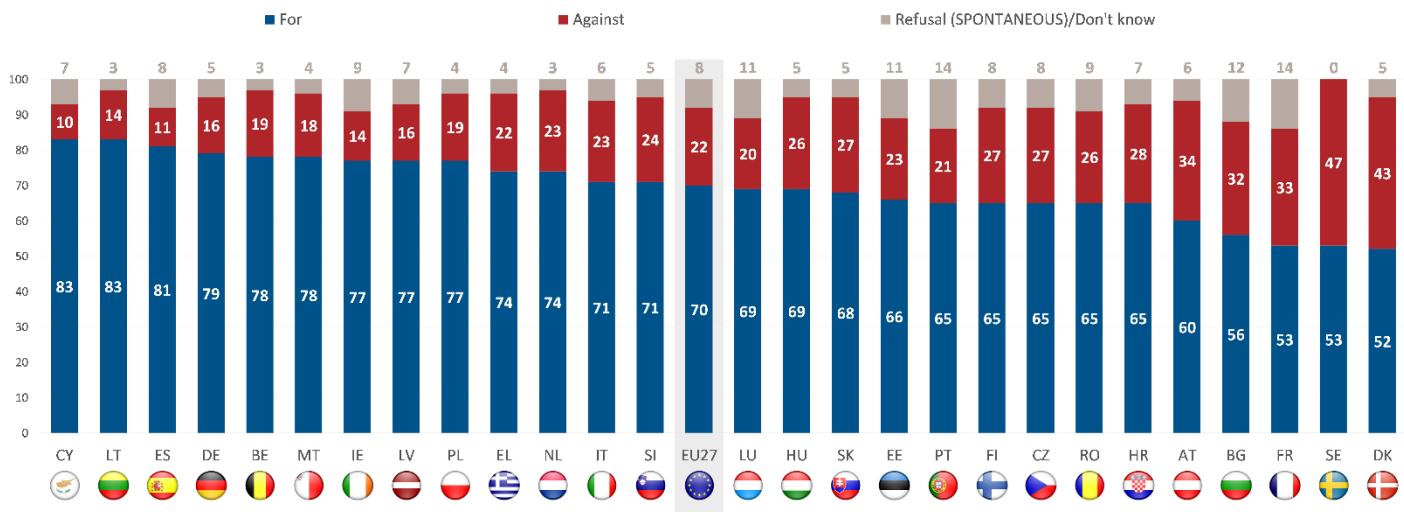

The proportion who is against a common foreign policy has increased slightly to 22% (+2 pp), while 8% (-1 pp) say they don't know or do not give an answer.

In all 27 Member States (up from 25 in winter 2021-2022) the majority is for a common foreign policy of the Member States of the EU, with the strongest support in Cyprus, Lithuania (both 83%) and Spain (81%). Denmark (52%), Sweden, France (both 53%) and Bulgaria (56%) are the only countries where fewer than six in ten are for this policy.

Support for a common foreign policy of the Member States of the EU has increased in seven Member States (down from eight in the previous survey), with the largest seen in Malta (78%, +13 percentage points), Sweden (53%, +10 pp) and Finland (65%, +7 pp).

In 17 countries, however, support has declined, and this is particularly the case in Estonia (66%, -13 pp), Croatia (65%, -11 pp) and Portugal (65%, -9 pp). There has been no change in opinion in Lithuania (83%), Spain (81%) or Belgium (78%).

As a result of these changes, the majority of respondents in Sweden are now "for" a common foreign policy of the Member States of the EU.

Summer 2022

There has been a considerable increase in support for further enlargement of the EU to include other countries in future years

Almost six in ten (57%) are in favour of a further enlargement of the EU to include other countries in future years, an increase of ten percentage points since winter 2021-2022.⁸ One third (33%, -9 percentage points) are against, while 10% (-1 pp) don't know or do not give an answer.

Support for further enlargement remains much stronger in countries in the non-euro area, where it has increased six percentage points to 66%. Although support in the euro area has also increased considerably, the overall level remains lower (54%, +9 pp). However, the increase means a majority in the euro area now supports further enlargement.

1. The way democracy works

Almost six in ten Europeans are satisfied with the way democracy works in their country

More than half of all Europeans (58%, +2 percentage points since winter 2021-2022) are satisfied with the way democracy works in their country, with 8% (-1 pp) "very satisfied" and 50% (+3 pp) "fairly satisfied".⁹

This increase recoups almost all the losses between spring 2021 and winter 2021-2022. Dissatisfaction has declined two points to 41% with 30% (=) "not very satisfied" and 11% (-2 pp) "not at all satisfied".

Almost six in ten Europeans are satisfied with the way democracy works in the EU

The proportion of Europeans satisfied with the way democracy works in the EU has increased three percentage points since winter 2021–2022 and is now 58%. This includes 6% (no change since winter 2021–2022) who are “very satisfied” and 52% (+3 percentage points) who are “fairly satisfied”. This increase puts satisfaction at its highest ever level since this indicator was introduced in autumn 2004, and two points above the previous high of spring 2021.

Almost four in ten (37%, -3 pp) are dissatisfied with 29% (-1 pp) “not very satisfied and 8% (-2 pp) “not at all satisfied”. One in twenty (5%, =) say they don’t know. Dissatisfaction is at its lowest level since spring 2019.

Although satisfaction has increased in both the euro area and non-euro area since winter 2021–2022, satisfaction remains higher in non-euro area countries and the gap between the two areas has increased. More than half of all respondents in the euro area are satisfied (56%, +3 pp), compared to just over two thirds in non-euro area (67%, +6 pp).

2. Are personal and national interests taken into account?

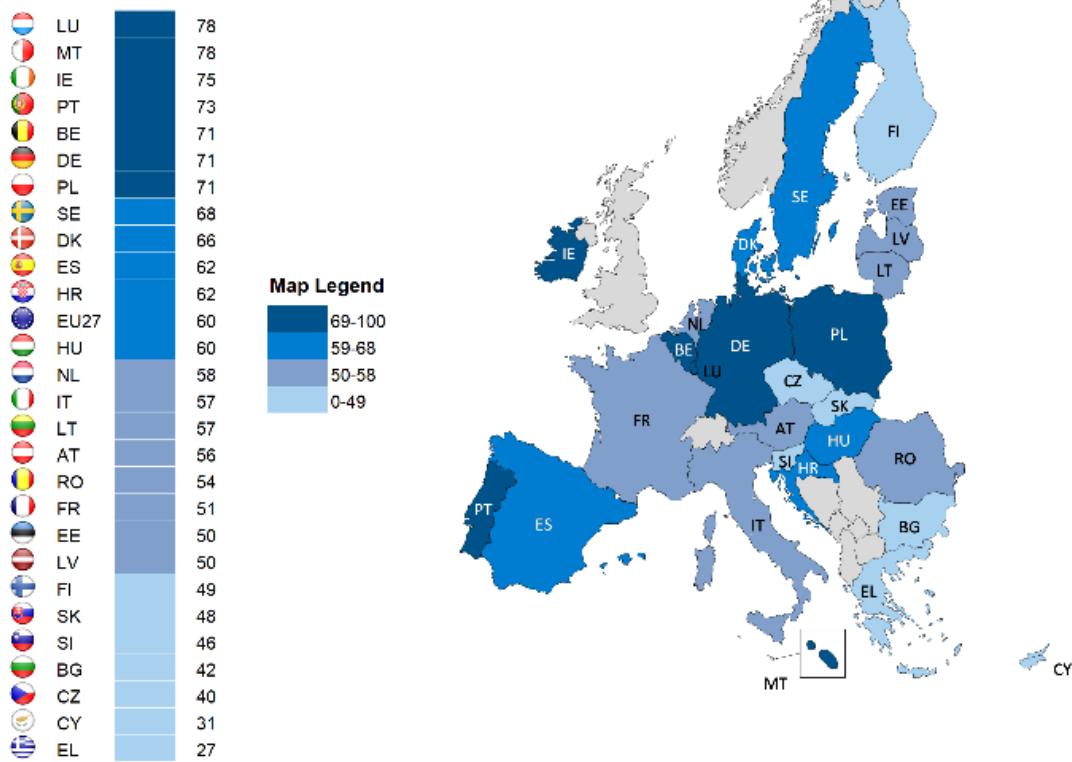

Six in ten Europeans think that the interests of their country are well taken into account in the EU

Since winter 2021-2022 there has been an increase of three percentage points in the proportion of respondents who think that the interests of their country are well taken into account in the EU.¹⁰

Overall, 60% agree (+3 percentage points), with 15% (+1 pp) saying they "totally agree" and 45% (+2 pp) that they "tend to agree". In contrast just over one third (34%, -1 pp) disagree, with 25% (=) tending to disagree and 9% (-1 pp) "totally disagreeing". Just over one in twenty (6%, -2 pp) are unable to answer.

Although agreement has increased in euro area countries (60%, +2 pp), there has been a larger increase in non-euro area countries, meaning agreement in countries outside the euro area is now higher (61%, +7 pp).

More than four in ten Europeans believe their voice counts in the EU

There has been a small increase since winter 2021-2022 in the proportion who believe their voice counts in the EU (46%, +2 percentage points).¹¹ Although this still represents a minority, it is the highest level of agreement since spring 2019, and the third consecutive increase in agreement. The majority (50%, -2 pp) thinks their voice does not count, although this view has declined by two percentage points and is at its lowest level since autumn 2019.

The view that their voice counts in the EU remains the minority opinion in euro area countries (44%, =), but has increased five points in non-euro area countries to become the majority view (52%).

Support for a fair taxation of large technology companies in the EU has rebounded since winter 2021-2022

Almost nine in ten Europeans (89%) agree there should be a fair taxation of large technology companies in the EU.¹⁹ This is a sharp increase of 12 percentage points since winter 2021-2022, reversing all of the decline in agreement seen between spring 2021 and winter 2021-2022. Since winter 2021-2022 the proportion who "totally agree" has increased 23 points to 54%, while 35% (-11 pp) "tend to agree". Just over one in twenty (6%, -10 pp) disagree, while 5% (-2 pp) are unable to answer.

In every EU Member State more than seven in ten respondents agree there should be a fair taxation of large technology companies in the EU, and in 20 countries at least nine in ten agree. Agreement is almost universal in Greece (97%), as well as Cyprus and Slovenia (both 95%), while Romania (73%) is the only country where fewer than eight in ten agree.

Free trade, the digital transformation of the economy and society, globalisation and protectionism

More than three quarters of Europeans (77%, +1 percentage point since winter 2021–2022) view free trade as positive, while 16% (=) view it as negative and 7% (-1 pp) are unable to answer. This increase puts the positive view at its second highest level (equal to 2009).

More than two thirds (67%, +3 pp) say the digital transformation of the economy and society brings to mind something positive. Less than one quarter (23%, -2 pp) view this as negative and 10% (-1 pp) say they don't know.

Globalisation is viewed as positive by 60% (+1 pp), while 32% (=) view it as negative and 8% (-1 pp) are unable to say. The positive view is now equal to the level seen in spring 2021 and remains higher than the period 2005 – 2019.

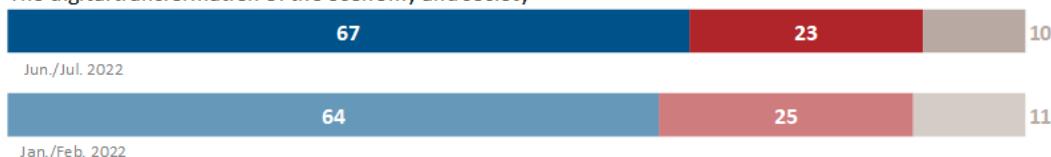

Reversing the trend seen between spring 2021 and winter 2021–2022, a positive view of protectionism is now the majority opinion. Almost half (48%, +5 percentage points) view protectionism as positive, while 40% (-4 pp) view it as negative and 12% (-1 pp) are unable to answer. The positive view of protectionism is now at its highest level. The negative view is at its lowest level since spring 2016.

Summer 2022

In 25 Member States (no change since spring 2021) the term globalisation brings to minds something positive for a majority of respondents, although proportions range from 85% in Denmark, 83% in Malta and 78% in Sweden to 47% in Cyprus (vs 45% ‘negative’) and 48% in Czechia (vs 44% ‘negative’).

In Greece (35% vs 60% ‘negative’) and France (39% vs 51%) only a minority views globalisation positively.

It is worth noting almost half (46%) in Malta say globalisation brings something “very positive” to mind.

As was the case in winter 2021-2022, the socio-demographic analysis highlights considerable variation in opinion. For example, the positive view is held by 72% of 15-24 year olds, 74% of students and those in the upper class, and 73% of respondents with a positive image of the EU, but by 52% of those aged 55 or older, 46% of those who completed education aged 15 or younger (vs 35% 'negative'), and 50% of house persons and retired persons.

Globalisation is considered as positive by a minority of respondents only amongst those who experience difficulties paying bills most of the time (44% 'positive' vs 45% 'negative') and those with a negative image of the EU (31% vs 63%).

The term protectionism is viewed in a positive light by a majority in 15 Member States (no change since winter 2021-2022). The highest levels are seen in Malta (75%), Romania (69%) and Ireland (68%), but the positive view is also the majority opinion in Latvia (43% vs 41% 'negative') and France (48% vs 39%).

In 11 countries a majority view protectionism negatively, with the largest proportions in Slovakia (68%), Sweden (61%) and the Netherlands (56%). Opinion is divided in Hungary (45% 'positive' and 45% 'negative').

It is also worth noting that at least one in five in Bulgaria (21%), Estonia and Portugal (both 20%) are unable to answer.

1. Core values of the European Union

Nine in ten Europeans think all EU Member States should respect the core values of the EU, such as fundamental rights, rule of law and democracy

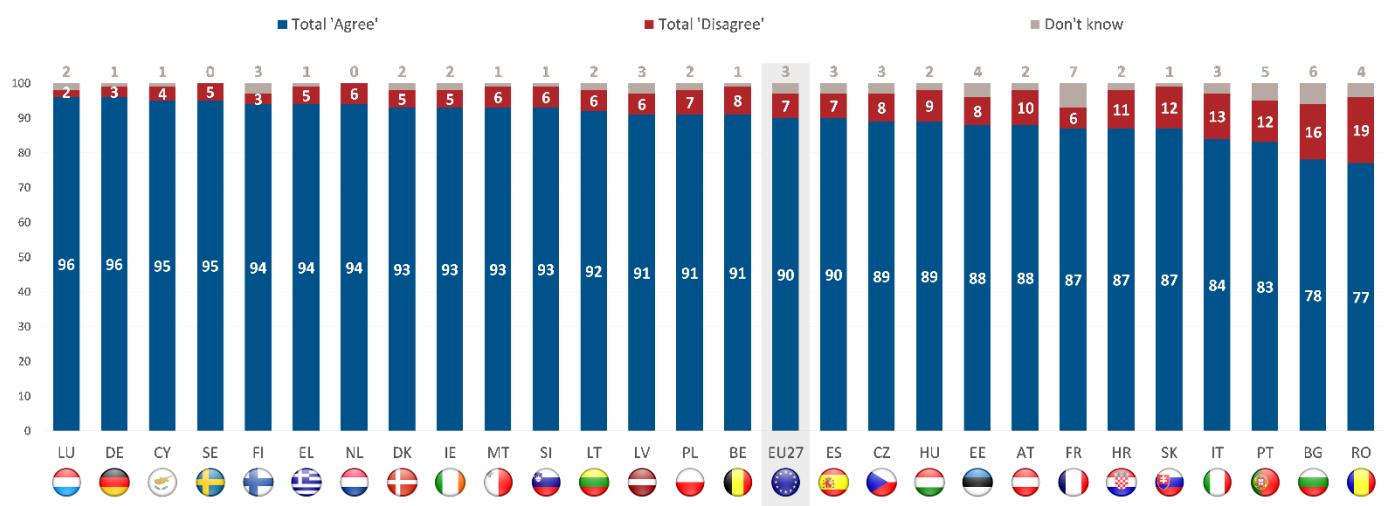

A large majority of Europeans (90%, +1 percentage point since winter 2021-2022) agree all EU Member States should respect the core values of the EU, such as fundamental rights, rule of law and democracy, with 55% (-3 pp) saying they "totally agree" and 35% (+4 pp) that they "tend to agree".²⁰ Fewer than one in ten (7%, -1 pp) disagree, while 3% (=) are unable to answer.

More than three quarters of respondents in all Member States (no change since winter 2021-2022) think that all EU Member States should respect the core values of the EU. This view is almost universal in Germany and Luxembourg (both 96%) and in Cyprus and Sweden (both 95%), and is also held by 77% in Romania, 78% in Bulgaria and 83% in Portugal.

It is worth noting that at least three quarters of respondents in Sweden (82%) and Finland (75%) say they "totally agree" with this statement.

V. A EUROPEAN GREEN DEAL

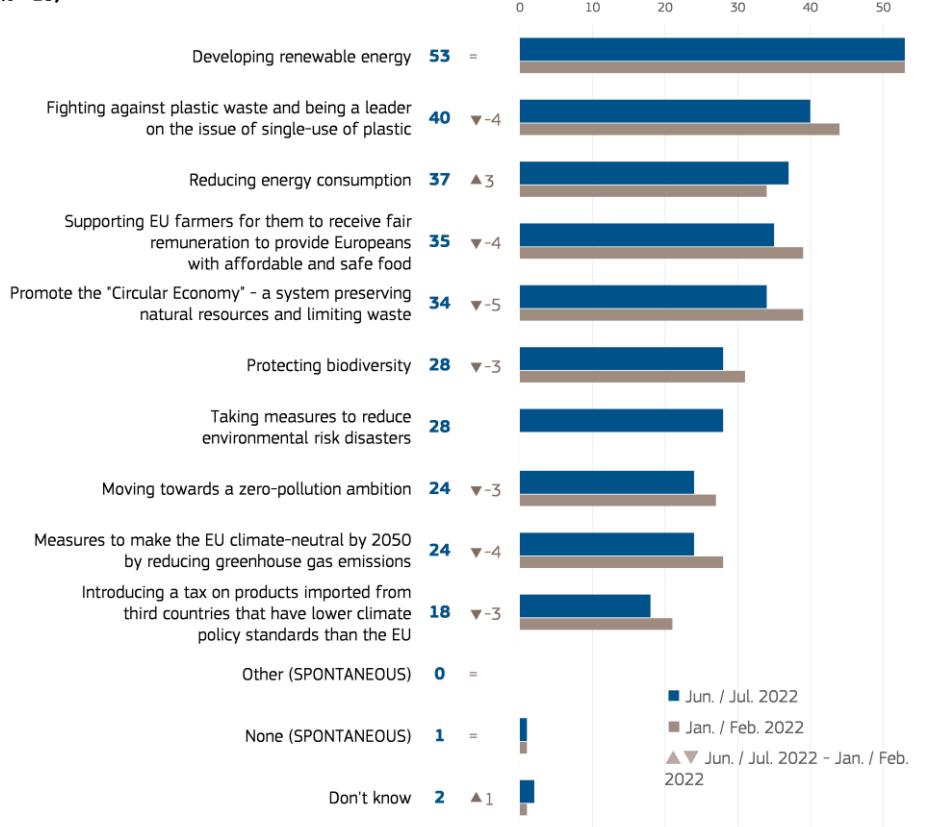

Developing renewable energy and fighting against plastic waste and single use plastics are the most widely supported objectives linked to a European Green Deal

Respondents were presented with a list of ten objectives and asked to give up to four which should be prioritised in a European Green Deal.²⁵

- Developing renewable energy (53%, no change since winter 2021-2022) is the top ranking priority, and the only one mentioned by at least half of all Europeans.
- Although it remains in second position, for the second consecutive wave mentions of fighting against plastic waste and being a leader on the issue of single-use of plastic have declined. This is a top priority objective for four in ten (40%, -4 percentage points).
- Mentions of reducing energy consumption have increased three percentage points since winter 2021-2022 and with 37% mentioning it this objective has risen from fifth to third position.
- Supporting EU farmers for them to receive fair remuneration to provide Europeans with affordable and safe food ranks fourth and has declined four points since the previous survey, mentioned by 35% of respondents.

- Almost as many (34%) think promoting the "Circular Economy" - a system preserving natural resources and limiting waste is a top priority, although this represents a decline of five points since winter 2021-2022. It has dropped from third to fifth position.
- 28% of respondents think taking measures to reduce environmental risk disasters (a new item introduced in this wave) should be given top priority in a European Green Deal. It ranks joint sixth with protecting biodiversity (28%, -3 pp).
- Eighth position is shared by measures to make the EU climate-neutral by 2050 by reducing greenhouse gas emissions (24%, -4 pp) and moving towards a zero-pollution ambition (24%, -3 pp).
- Introducing a tax on products imported from third countries that have lower climate policy standards than the EU is the least mentioned objective (18%, -3 pp).
- Reducing energy consumption is the only objective that has increased mentions since the previous wave. Mentions have declined for all other objectives except developing renewable energy, where mentions have remained stable.

Standard Eurobarometer 97
Europeans' opinions about the European Union's priorities
Summer 2022

Developing renewable energy is one of the three most mentioned priority objectives for the European Green Deal in every Member State and ranks first in 18 countries (down from 20 in winter 2021-2022). The most widespread support for this objective is seen in Denmark (71%), Portugal (67%) and Cyprus (66%).

Fighting against plastic waste and leading on the issue of single use plastic is the most mentioned objective in three Member States (no change from the previous survey): Luxembourg (55%), Malta (47%) and Bulgaria (44%). It has the highest levels of support in Luxembourg, Lithuania (50%), and Slovenia and the Netherlands (both 49%).

There are five countries (up from two in the previous survey) where supporting EU farmers for them to receive fair remuneration to provide Europeans with affordable and safe food is the top priority: Finland (55%), Slovakia (53%), France (51%), Latvia (49%) and Romania (33%).

The Netherlands and Estonia (both 50%) are the only countries where the top priority is promoting the "Circular Economy" - a system preserving natural resources and limiting waste (down from four countries in the previous survey).

None of the other objectives rank first in any country, however:

- Reducing energy consumption is the second most mentioned objective in Spain (46%), Italy (45%), Germany (44%) and shares second place in Hungary (41%) along with fighting against plastic waste, and is the third most mentioned in six countries.
- Protecting biodiversity ranks second in France (44%) and third in Sweden (42%) and Portugal (40%).
- Taking measures to reduce environmental risk disasters ranks second in Greece (46%) and Cyprus (42%, shared with promoting the Circular Economy) and third in Bulgaria (36%).

Europeans' opinions about the European Union's priorities
Summer 2022

Focusing on the four most mentioned objectives, the national evolutions since winter 2021-2022 illustrate the following:

Mentions of developing renewable energy have increased in nine countries (down from 17 in the previous survey), with the largest increases in Lithuania (57%, +10 percentage points), Portugal (67%, +9 pp) and Czechia (53%, +9 pp). Mentions have declined in 15 countries, and particularly in Malta (41%, -13 pp), Estonia (47%, -13 pp) and Poland (43%, -7 pp). There has been no change in opinion in Denmark (71%), Italy (54%) and Hungary (55%).

Luxembourg (55%, +7 pp) and Denmark (45%, +1 pp) are the only Member States where mentions of fighting against plastic waste and leading on the issue of single use plastic have increased since winter 2021-2022 (down from seven in the previous survey). In 24 countries mentions have declined, with the largest in Cyprus (36%, -10 pp), Belgium (32%, -10 pp) and Czechia (38%, -10 pp). Opinion has remained unchanged in Estonia (41%).

Mentions of reducing energy consumption have increased in 17 countries (up from 15 in the previous survey) including Spain (46%, +14 pp), Germany (44%, +10 pp) and Czechia (45%, +10 pp). In contrast they have declined in eight countries including Lithuania (31%, -8 pp) and Malta (29%, -6 pp). Mentions remain stable in Belgium (33%) and France (32%).

Supporting EU farmers for them to receive fair remuneration to provide Europeans with affordable and safe food is now more widely mentioned in nine countries (down from 14 in the previous survey), and this is particularly the case in Finland (55%, +7 pp). In contrast, mentions have declined in 16 countries including Portugal (27%, -12 pp), Cyprus (32%, -11 pp) and Estonia (41%, -10 pp).

There are several other objectives with national evolutions of more than ten percentage points:

- Promote the "Circular Economy" - a system preserving natural resources and limiting waste is much less likely to be mentioned in Portugal (25%, -20 pp), Czechia (38%, -14 pp) and Estonia (50%, -10 pp).
- Protecting biodiversity is less likely to be mentioned in Czechia (18%, -11 pp) and Estonia (28%, -10 pp).
- Respondents in Portugal (21%, -12 pp) are now less likely to mention moving towards a zero-pollution ambition.
- Respondents in Greece (18%, -13 pp), Portugal (19%, -11 pp) and Cyprus (21%, -10 pp) are now less likely to prioritise measures to make the EU climate-neutral by 2050 by reducing greenhouse gas emissions.
- Mentions of introducing a tax on products imported from third countries that have lower climate policy standards than the EU have increased in Malta (24%, +11 pp) but declined in Czechia (16%, -10 pp).

The socio-demographic analysis focuses on the four most mentioned priorities. In general, there are few notable differences in levels of support across socio-demographic categories.

However, it is worth noting that the strongest support for developing renewable energy is seen amongst students (59%), particularly compared to the unemployed (47%) and those with a negative image of the EU (46%).

VI. A DIGITAL SINGLE MARKET WITHIN THE EU

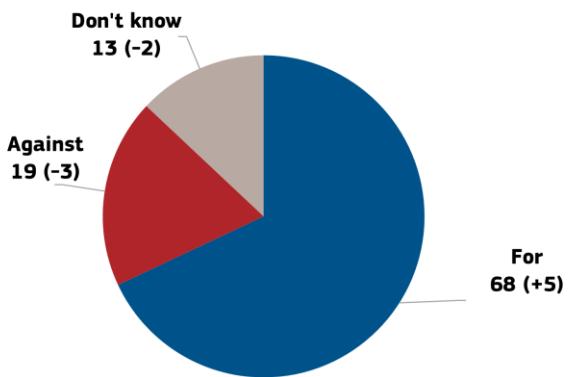

Standard Eurobarometer 97
Europeans' opinions about the European Union's priorities
Summer 2022

Almost six in ten Europeans are in favour of a digital single market within the EU

The proportion of Europeans in favour of a digital single market within the EU has increased five percentage points since winter 2021-2022 and now sits at 68%.²⁷ This is the highest level of support since this measure was introduced in May 2015. The proportion against this idea has dropped three points to its lowest ever level of 19%. Just over one in ten (13%, -2 pp) are unwilling to answer or say they don't know.

In all 27 Member States a majority views the digital transformation of the economy and society as positive (up from 26 in the previous survey).²⁸ However, there is a degree of variation, with at least eight in ten in Malta (86%) and Finland (80%), and 78% in Denmark and Poland in favour, compared to 45% in France (vs 39% 'negative'), 58% in Bulgaria and 60% in Austria.

The trend since winter 2021-2022 shows that a positive view of the digital transformation of the economy and society has become more widespread in 20 countries (up from six in the previous survey), with the strongest growth in support in Malta (86%, +13 percentage points), Romania (64%, +10 pp), Poland (78%, +9 pp), Lithuania (74%, +9 pp) and Spain (67%, +9 pp). On the other hand, support has declined in six countries including Estonia (74%, -14 pp) and Czechia (65%, -12 pp), and has remained stable in Bulgaria (58%).

As a result of these changes the positive view is now the majority opinion in France.
